THE MIDDLEBURY CAMPUS

VOL. XI. THE MIDDLEBURY CAMPUS, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1915. No. 1.

BOSTON ALUMNI HOLD DINNER.

Recognition Given to Dean Wright Who Has Completed 30 Years of Service at Middlebury.

The Boston Sunday Globe of February 14, has the following account of the reception given to Prof. C. B. Wright by the Boston Association of Middlebury College Alumni:

Praise for Middlebury College and for its dean, Prof. Charles B. Wright, who has completed 30 years of service to the college, characterized the annual reunion dinner of the Boston Association of Middlebury College Alumni at the Hotel Westminster last evening. About 70 loyal alumni and alumnae attended the dinner, which was given in honor of Prof. Wright.

Pres. John M. Thomas, '90, declared that Prof. Wright had been his right-hand man in everything pertaining to Middlebury affairs and expressed his appreciation of the dean's judgment and discretion in all such matters.

"The all-important matter at Middlebury just now," declared the president, "is our relation with the State of Vermont. The bill of the Carnegie Foundation for the revision of education in that State, which was given a hearing at Montpelier this week, would deprive Middlebury of about one-third of our income from the State. I feel, however, that our cause is likely to prevail and that this injustice will not be done us.

"It must be remembered that Vermont was really the first inland State, the first State which was never a colony. The exact position of Vermont will never be rightly understood until it is remembered that, instead of being an integral part of New England, it was really the first bold emigrant in the Western movement, that movement which made the United States what it now is. Vermont is not the backwoods of New England and she intends to educate her children, not to carry on the occupations which their fathers happened to follow, but toward the life of the great American people."

Rev. Dr. William H. Van Allen, '90, rector of the Church of the Advent, emphasized the fact that it is not numbers or mere size which count in the field of culture and real education, but rather the influence of strong minds and noble characters. "When we speak of a man of culture," he said, "it really means one who enjoys that complete mastery of his mother tongue which enables him to unlock the treasure houses of the literature of that language. Only such a man is really educated."

Prof. Wright expressed his gratification at the honor paid him by the Boston graduates of Middlebury. Charles M. Prynne, '76, the retiring president of the association, presided, and Rev. Dr. James L. Barton, '81, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, acted as toastmaster.

Fay A. Simmons, '02, was elected president of the association and the other officers are: Rachel M. Pike, '12, secretary; Arthur B. King, '12, treasurer; J. Earle Parker, '01, George H. Remele, '76, and Gertrude Cornish, '01, executive committee.

The committee in charge of the reunion comprised: Mr. Prynne, Annie I. Gerry, the retiring secretary, and Walter H. Cleary, the retiring treasurer. Those present, in addition to the speakers and committee, included:

Dr. J. B. Brainerd, '79, Dr. B. M. Bristol, '98, Rev. G. W. Brooks, '73, David H. Brown, '14, W. W. Chalmers, '13, Walter H. Cleary, '11, Marvin J. Dodd, '13, Clifton S. Hadley, '09, E. H. Higley, '68, E. W. Howe, '69, Geo. E. Kimball, '06, Arthur R. King, '12, Chas. W. Mulcahey, '12, J. Earl Parker '01, Alva C. Peck, '80, Gertrude Cornish, '01, Elizabeth Chalmers, '14, Margaret Ellison, '12, May Guerin, '14, Jessie M. Graves, '14, Mrs. J. E. Parker, '03, Rachel Pike, '12, Marion E. Roys, '11, Mrs. Harriet Scott, '86, Mrs. F. G. Simmons, '01, Eunice W. Smith, '11, Pauline A. Smith, '06, Harriet H. Steele, '95, Helen G. Wood, '11, Miss Barton, Mrs. E. W. Howe, Miss Perkins, Mrs. Lewis E. Rye, Mrs. Chas. B. Wright, Miss Marjory Wright, Carl A. Perkins, '07, Chas. M. Prynne, '76, Prof. Jas. M. Patten, George H. Remele, '72, Clinton S. Reynolds, '12, Lewis E. Rye, '08, Thomas Rock, '12, Fay A. Simmons, '02, Chas. L. Smiddy, '13, Robert R. Twitchell, '11, Homer J. Vail, '14, R. C. Whitney, '14, Mrs. J. R. Batchelder, '01, Mrs. H. L. ## RENEWS OLD CUSTOM.

Washington's Birthday Observed by the College with Appropriate Exercises.

DOCTOR NOYES OF NEWTON, MASS., SPEAKER.

With the simple, but appropriate exercises in observance of Washington's birthday, held in the Gymnasium Monday evening, one of Middlebury's old traditions was again restored. In place of the college banquet which in former years marked the anniversary of Washington's birth, a fitting program was arranged by the college welfare committee, with Rev. Dr. Edward M. Noyes of Newton, Mass., as the speakee of the evening.

President John M. Thomas presided and opened the exercises with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the assemblage, for which music was furnished by the College orchestra. In his usual happy fashion, President Thomas then introduced Doctor Noyes, who delivered a very scholarly and inspiring address on "National Ideals."

Doctor Noyes prefaced his address by paying a tribute to Doctor Barton and the college which he now visited for the first time. He quoted former President Tucker of Dartmouth as stating that the test of a college is the quality of the men or women that it sends out into the world, and that in Doctor Barton and the host of other noted men who had gone forth from her doors, Middlebury College had met that test.

In developing his theme, Doctor Noyes traced the influence of national ideals in the development of the present German Empire out of independent States. He recalled its influence in the development of a united Italy, and the sacrifice of eight sovereigns required in the process. He pictured its final expression in a reciprocity of national life and pointed the way to the possibility of universal national ideals of the future.

The national ideals of the world's nations, said Doctor Noyes, have passed through a regular circle, beginning with the military ideals of conquest, and ending in a final national consciousness. This was typified by the history of Assyria, the first great world power, and each of the succeeding dominant nations. The ideals of Greece, he said, were liberty and citizenship; of Rome, justice and equality; of England, civil liberty; of Germany, efficiency; of America, what Professor Giddings had described as universality. The present European condition, Doctor Noyes described as a renaissance of the ideals of conquest, in which the twentieth century Germany was reunited with her pristine genius, encouraging the religion of valor. The American ideal, he said, rested on the appeal to reason, rather than force; that its secret was like-mindedness, the real basis of human society.

Doctor Noyes attributed the splendid national ideals of our nation to the idea

"PICK" FISHER RESIGNS.

Physical Instructor of the College Signs Up at Large Salary with New York Americans.

HOLMES OF SPRINGFIELD TO TAKE FISHER'S PLACE.

"Pick" Fisher has been signed up under a three-year contract by the New York American with a salary of $19,-500. Under these circumstances he has been forced to resign his position as physical director.

In losing "Pick" the college loses a man whose interest in its welfare has been great. He has followed his duties in a way which reflects credit, not only on himself, but on the college as a whole.

Fisher graduated from Middlebury in the class of 1910. While in college he pitched excellent ball for the varsity and captained the team his senior year.

Fisher began his professional career with the Hartford club of the old Connecticut League now known as the fast Eastern Association. When Hartford won the pennant Fisher was mainly responsible for the glory. The New York Americans drafted him the same season and he has been with that club ever since. While in major league company Fisher has given an excellent account of himself and is rated with the best in the game today. He is one of the youngest pitchers in the major leagues. His work here during the winter has kept him in the best of condition and when the season opens we expect "Pick" to give a good account of himself.

Thursday night the men of the college will gather in the gymnasium to give "Pick" a big send-off and to wish him the best of success in the future.

Holmes to Succeed Fisher as Physical Director.

Edwin N. Holmes of the Springfield (Mass.) Training School has accepted the position as physical director of Middlebury College and will assume his duties next September. Mr. Holmes has had a three-year course at Springfield and comes to Middlebury highly recommended.

Before going to Springfield he graduated from the University of Sioux Falls, S. D., after which he had charge of football at William Jewell College, Missouri, for two years. Mr. Holmes is an excellent all-around man, his specialty being football. He was in Middlebury during the past football season, where he played tackle on the Springfield eleven.

EDITOR'S NOTE.

Owing to the death of Hon. Joseph Battell and the consequent temporary closing of the Register Publishing Co., where THE CAMPUS is published, it was found necessary to omit the insert in this number containing accounts of the basket ball games and other matters of lesser importance. These articles will be published in the next issue.

EDITORIAL.

The Athletic Council of Middlebury College is to be congratulated on its successful application for membership in the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association. The action of the student body in sending two representatives to the annual meeting of the association to help insure the success of the application is to be commended and indicates undergraduate endorsement of the action of the council. Athletically speaking, Middlebury will assume a prouder position in the sisterhood of New England colleges, for the season of 1915 will find the wearers of the blue and white competing with the best material of the other New England institutions.

The development of track athletics at Middlebury has been so rapid within the past few years that most of us are inclined to take the latest step of the council as a matter of course, without stopping to realize just what it means. In looking back over some old college annuals, we became acquainted with the fact that in the old days, before base ball and football were as highly organized, class superiority was determined at the annual track and field day meets. The possession of the Faculty Cup was an honor bestowed upon the class proving its superiority on these occasions. College records were set up and repeatedly broken. Effort was made to interest schoolboy athletes in the institution and a second Faculty Cup was awarded the successful Preparatory school at the annual Interscholastic Track Meet held by the College Athletic Association. Interest in track athletics was stimulated by the building of a cinder track in '97 and continued for a few years until the rise of base ball and football as 'varsity sports. Not until 1912 do we find any record of an intercollegiate track meet, while the season of 1914 witnessed Middlebury's first intercollegiate track victory—the defeat of Rensselaer. The step to membership in the New England association was therefore the logical step in the development of track athletics at Middlebury.

Middlebury's membership in the New England association means several things to the college. In the first place, track athletics, the oldest of athletic sports at Middlebury, will come into her own as a permanent intercollegiate activity. In this connection the season of 1915 should mark a new era in the development of intercollegiate athletics. Even though we should not be fortunate enough to win a single point—which is no uncommon experience of other colleges enjoying membership of many years' standing, as attested by the record of Vermont, University of Maine and Wesleyan—the name of Middlebury will become more familiar with the people of New England through more intimate association with our sister colleges, and her sons will have opportunity of spreading her fame by competition with the champions of other institutions. Added inducement of the possibility of intercollegiate competition should result in Middlebury's drawing a larger share of "prep" school material to her halls. This means that more students should be attracted from cities like New York and Boston, where, by municipal cooperation, track and field sports are financed from the public treasury and a highly organized system of competition built up.

Perhaps the greatest stimulus will be felt in this branch of athletics itself. There is no sport more conducive to clean living, more productive of self reliance, more insistent upon self sacrifice to a system of faithful arduous training than track athletics. There is no sport, not excepting base ball and football, that will develop the individual to a higher degree of efficiency than track athletics, and it is only fitting and proper that Middlebury should rise to her duty to encourage this branch of activity.

Before coming to Middlebury, the writer had the pleasure and privilege of attending both the New England Intercollegiate Meet and that of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association. At the latter meet, held in the Harvard Stadium, there was the scene of a life time in witnessing several thousand people worked into a frenzy of excitement and joy as John Paul Jones of Cornell shattered the world's record for the mile, in the most wonderful race ever run in America. Linked in memory with his almost superhuman feat, is the spectacle of unbounded jov of the Cornellian host. May some John Paul Jones of the future bring laurels to the college of the green hills and may the fair name of Middlebury be crowned with victory in her new field of athletic endeavor.

RENEWS OLD CUSTOM.

Of universal education, our efficient legal system, equality of opportunity, freedom of religion, and faith in humanity. Our ideas of popular education are typified in the educational system of New York city, he said, which is the only city in the world where a poor boy may go, in successive stages, from the primary through the university, without a cent of expense to himself. Referring to our legal system, he lauded the elevation of our Supreme Court to its present lofty and honorable position, as a final court of appeal. Freedom of religion was responsible for the present healthy spiritual life and national unity of the nation. Faith in humanity had resulted in our immigration policy of open door, with certain restrictions, to peoples of nearly all races; while the governmental policy of land grants was unprecedented in history.

The effects of our national ideals, said Doctor Noyes, were evidenced in Gladstone's description of our constitution as the greatest political instrument ever struck off at one time by the hand of man; in the adoption by every South American nation, and many European nations, of constitutions modelled after our own.

Doctor Noyes pictured Washington as the expander of England, inasmuch as he had taught her justice and toleration. This, he said, resulted in a new policy of colonial government which made possible the loyal affection and reverence in which the mother land is now held, and which prompted the loyal response in England's present hour of need. In closing he sounded the keynote of a universal State embodying the features of Greece, Rome, England and America, with all nations therein, relying on justice and a spirit of brotherly kindness.

The address of Doctor Noyes was very attentively received, and was a model for simplicity and directness. Its appeal to quiet patriotism, and its pleasing delivery ranked it among the best that have been delivered at Middlebury. The student body and faculty feel very grateful for the visit of Doctor Noyes.

The formal part of the program closed with the singing of "America," after which refreshments were served by a committee of girls in colonial costume, from the Woman's college, and an informal social time was enjoyed.

A LETTER FROM THE WAR ZONE.

Prof. D. L. Robinson of Middlebury college has received the following interesting letter from F. G. Witts of London, England:

Harringay, N. London,
Jan. 4, 1915.

Dear Mr. Robinson:

I received your card this morning and was very pleased to hear from you again. I have often thought of you when the question has arisen of the position of America with regard to the war and what is the general opinion of Americans. You will be more specially interested in how the war has affected me. I applied to join an officers Training corps, but they refused me as too old. My brother of about 25 has joined the O. T. C., of the Univ. of London and my two other brothers have joined the Territorials. The rally to the army by the young men of London has been splendid and there is no doubt that these fellows, most of them well educated and from the middle classes, will make admirable and intelligent soldiers. The new army is going across at the present time and I am sanguine that they will soon make their presence felt. I have been very closely concerned with the Belgian refugees in London. At first the novelty of their surroundings and the open hospitality and welcome they received caused the feeling of lonliness and loss which they now begin to feel very strongly. They must not enter into competition with English workmen, they know little or nothing of the language, they have nothing to do so you can imagine how bored they become and worse still there is no immediate hope or prospect of return to their land. They have been only to glad to attend classes in English that have been arranged for them. Mrs. Witts supervised the receipt and arrangement of furniture from members of our school to furnish a house specially lent and free of taxes, and now we have three families housed there, 25 people in all. Many other houses have been provided in a similar way. During the Christmas holidays we have received two ladies who know no English. It has been very good for my French, but you have no idea how fatiguing it is to entertain day and night people who have nothing particular to do. They say that war consolidates a nation and dissolves feuds and unites irreconcilibles and this is undoubtedly the case with us. It affects all ranks of society and is an admirable object lesson to all that each class is indispensable and has its special work to do. In school, too, there is a new spirit, and a quickened interest in such subjects as French history and geography. With so many Belgians about, the pupils have a chance of putting their knowledge into practice and this acts as a great incentive, which in geography, especially on the commercial side, there are hundreds of ways to show how the world is inixtricably interlaced with connections and the suffering of one part affects all. We shall be very interested to have your views. Mrs. Witts sends her kindest regards to you and all at home.

Yours very sincerely,
F. G. Witts.

On February 28, Enoch F. Beil of Boston will be in Middlebury at the invitation of the Y. W. C. A. and will speak at the college vesper service Sunday afternoon at five o'clock. Mr. Bell represents the American Board.

LIBRARY NOTES.

The library has recently purchased the revised and enlarged edition of the the Century dictionary, cyclopedia and atlas. It is a revision of considerable importance. All subjects recording growth have been scrutinized by men of authority and their recommended changes made. The material in the supplemental volume has been revised and placed at the end of each volume, with a reference in the main text to additional matter in the supplemental pages. The cyclopedia of names has been revised and brought down to September, 1911, by the addition of a thousand new entries, making it the best single volume biographical dictionary now in print. Then to the atlas have been added eight new maps, the old ones have been thoroughly revised, the index reset and enlarged and population figures from the 1910 census and other estimates added.

Dr. Harrington's Lecture.

Dr. Harrington spoke to the men of the college Tuesday evening, February 16, on "The Teachings of Christ as Found in the First Three Gospels." This was one of a series of lectures on the general subject of "The Basis of Christianity."

Lahiff-Kennedy.

The marriage of Michael Lahiff, '12, and Miss Martha Kennedy of Worcester, Mass., has been announced. Mr. Lahiff was a prominent student at Middlebury and a member of the Chi Psi Fraternity. Mrs. Lahiff is a graduate of Trinity College, Washington, and of Fitchburg Normal school. Mr. Lahiff is associated with Mrs. Lahiff's father in business.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE

ESTABLISHED IN 1800

A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THE CAMPUS AND BUILDINGS

The College is now prepared to furnish to alumni and students a beautiful photogravure of the campus and buildings, from a drawing by Mr. J. M. Meeker. The size is 10x20 1-2. The paper is Dutch hand-made plate, of weight sufficient to be framed unmounted. All of the newer buildings of the college are shown, including the Mead Memorial Chapel. The picture is pronounced equal to any college bird's-eye view in impressiveness and beauty.

It is suggested that alumni may not only desire copies for themselves, but also for presentation to some high school.

Ex-'47. Rev. Gemont Graves died January 27, 1915, at the home of his brother, George E. Graves, in Washington, D. C. The funeral was held in Rutland, Vt., Friday, January 29. Mr. Graves entered Middlebury College in 1843 and continued here two years. He was a member of the Chi Psi fraternity. He continued his course in Trinity College, receiving his degree in 1849. Middlebury College conferred the degree of A. M. upon him in 1863. He received the degree of S. T. D. from Trinity College in 1908. In 1853 he graduated from General Theological Seminary, New York. Doctor Graves was a well-known clergyman in the Protestant Episcopal church and presided over several parishes in the State of Vermont. Under his charge churches were consecrated at Milton, Cambridge and Winooski. He was at one time secretary of the Vermont Board of Missions of the Episcopal church. After his retirement he made his home in Burlington and more recently in Washington, D. C. He always retained an active interest in Middlebury and wrote a letter to the college as late as January 5, 1915.

'91. Edgar R. Brown has been reappointed to the Newark Board of Education by Mayor Raymond for a term of three years. Mr. Brown has served seven successive years on the Board. That he has filled the office with credit to himself and to the college is best shown by the following excerpt from the Newark Sunday Call: "The return of Edgar R. Brown to the Board of Education by Mayor Raymond has been received with marked satisfaction by the great majority of Newarkers who take sincere interest in the city's public schools. The reappointment of Mr. Brown was expected because he was manifestly the best man for the office. The fact that Mr. Brown has been repeatedly outvoted upon purely educational questions did not deter Mayor Raymond from finding him the best man available for the Board. It would be well, perhaps, for the Board's majority to ponder upon this fact and to remember at the same moment that the reappointment is undeniably well received by the people of Newark."

At the State Magistrate's Conference held at Albany, N. Y., on January 19th and 20th Judge Thomas H. Noonan, '91, represented the City Court of Buffalo. He was elected one of the executive committee of the association and also appointed chairman of the committee to recommend amendments to the constitutional convention in relation to such courts.

Announcement is make of the marriage of Warren E. Bristol, '07, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carleton E. Bristol of Vergennes to Miss Lois Neff of Bucyrus, Ohio. The ceremony took place at the bride's home February 3d. Mr. Bristol is a graduate of Columbia University as well as of Middlebury, and is now secretary of the World's Committee of the Y. M. C. A. with headquarters at New York. Mrs. Bristol is a graduate of Wooster University.

Hon. Joseph Battell, ex-'60, of Middlebury passed away at Washington, D. C., on the evening of February 23. His obituary will be published in the next number of THE CAMPUS.

ALBANY LAW SCHOOL

The course of study leading to the degree of L. L. B. extends over a period of three years. Students who have pursued one or two years in a law office may enter the second year class as a candidate for a diploma but not a degree.

The high standard of the school and the facilities which the city affords with its legislature, libraries and courts, offer unequalled opportunity for a thorough and practical training.
